National Arts in Education Week

Welcome back to another wonderful school year. We celebrate new opportunities for learning and wish to highlight a special week for the arts - National Arts in Education Week. The week of September 9th-15th offers special recognition for arts education across the nation. Congress in 2010 through House Resolution 275 designated the second week in September to bring attention to providing all students access to the arts. Consider sharing a #BecauseOfArtsEd story on Facebook or a photo on twitter using the tag #ArtsEdWeek. Connect these with the @WisDPIArtsEd twitter feed. Let us share how Wisconsin celebrates the arts. Thank you again for your work in the arts. I encourage you to join a WI DPI Arts Educator Google Community and to post your great arts education news, photographs, and stories.

Student Learning Objectives

The beginning of a school year provides a fresh start. This means you will be diving into the identification of student skills and knowledge in your content area and shaping their learning experience. This work includes the development of a student-learning objective (SLO). Here are resources to consider, including a SLO Arts Sharing Site. Contribute to this site with your SLO idea and offer feedback to others. Visit <https://dpi.wi.gov/fine-arts/pd/slo> for more resources. If you have any questions, please contact Julie Palkowski.

Theatre Standards

The Wisconsin Standards for Theatre writing committee shared their draft online with the public this summer. Feedback gathered and updates to the draft will be shared with the State Superintendent's Standards Review Council in mid-September. Information about this work is online at <https://dpi.wi.gov/fine-arts/theatre> and periodically available within the @WisDPIArtsEd twitter feed.

Dance Standards

Dance standards will be a part of the upcoming review in mid-September. Public survey input from this summer will be shared with the State Superintendent's Standards Review Council in mid-September. Information about this work is online at <https://dpi.wi.gov/fine-arts/dance> and periodically available within the @WisDPIArtsEd twitter feed.

Art & Design and Music Standards

The cycle of all content reviews, including theatre, dance, and art and design, is online. Teams are in process with theatre and dance standards. The WI DPI Wisconsin Standards for Music is online for use, along with resources. Art & Design will start its review in early 2019. Check content area websites for updates.
